

We offer talented people many routes to success

Many of our staff join the company as post-graduate interns, embarking on a journey that can open new horizons for them – professionally and personally.

“I started my journey at Ardian in 2005. Like many of us, I joined the company as an intern within the Fund of Funds team in Paris, where I spent the first four years of my career. In 2009, I was offered the opportunity to move to the New York office, where I worked with my colleagues in the US Fund of Funds team for more than two years. This was a very exciting time because Ardian’s profile in the US secondary market – and globally – was changing dramatically. In 2011, I returned to Europe to work on investment opportunities in primary and secondary fund of funds. In my 15 years with Ardian, I have had many opportunities to grow and overcome new challenges. It’s been an amazing journey so far.”

“I joined Ardian in September 2015 as an intern in the Fund Finance team for Fund of Funds in London, after graduating from Athens University of Economics and the London School of Economics. Ardian gave me the opportunity to develop my skills and progress within the team and strongly supported my personal and career development by enabling me to qualify as a chartered accountant. Also, I was able to take part in Ardian’s rotation program and spend time working with my colleagues in the New York office. That was an incredible opportunity, which helped me get to know different teams and understand the multiple challenges Ardian faces globally.”

"I joined Ardian four years ago as the first native Californian (my family is from San Francisco) and was excited about the opportunity to deepen Ardian's Western US and Canadian relationships. The best part about my role is the opportunity to share the Ardian story with smart and sophisticated investors across North America. Traveling to cities throughout my region with colleagues from around the world and all our investment teams keeps my job interesting and fresh. Everyone is always enthusiastic about coming out here – especially if it means visiting California in January! It's important in our business to build deep and meaningful relationships, so it was essential to me that I join a firm that really sees the client as a partner – which is certainly the case at Ardian."

"I am an Ardian "baby". Like many others, I started as a post-graduate intern and nine years later I am a Director in the Expansion team. As far as I am concerned, it is part of Ardian's DNA to trust young people and help them grow professionally and personally. It totally reflects Ardian's values: this organization is looking for excellence and is very demanding, but it knows how rewarding it is to be given the responsibility to make decisions. This creates long-lasting loyalty. Not only am I involved in the Expansion team, which is fast-moving and very exciting, but I also volunteer with the Ardian Foundation as a mentor for Sport dans la Ville, one of its partner charities. This is another aspect of life at Ardian that I enjoy: it's an investment company that believes finance must have a sustainable purpose."
